

I believe that independent ISPs are a necessary component of a free-market, and that their access to infrastructure controlled by large corporations should continue to be guaranteed. Part and parcel with this is that the FCC should continue to pursue its mandate from the people, and that the large corporation providers of infrastructure and broadband access should continue to be subjected to regulation and review by the FCC.
Thank you.